

My family likes Wisconsin NoCall list. I have signed both our parents up. Our parents are in their 80's and don't want telemarketer calling; they often get confused about products and what marketers are offering. We are protecting them and ourselves from unwanted calls and slick marketers. We had a marketer tell our son when he was a senior in high school that it was a trial offer and they needed his checking account number, which he gave them. It took me days and hours on the phone to get that offer canceled and a trip to his bank to clear up the mess. He had just gotten his first checking account, this ended in a good way, but not without the telemarketer threatening him about the agreement he made and them trying to reduce the magazine order. I know what I went through to get it canceled and I know most senior citizens could not have handled the pressure. They were going to deduct $58.00 a month for three years out of his checking account. More than any student can afford and/or senior citizen. Do not let banks or any other business weaken this no call list.
